ViewPoints: Allergan and Express Scripts applaud Novo Nordisk's stance on drug pricing

FirstWord Pharma - December 6

That didn't take long. Less than a week since Allergan CEO Brent Saunders implored pharma to take the initiative to defuse a public debate on drug pricing, Novo Nordisk has become the second player to make a cost pledge.

US Health Spending Grew Especially Fast Last Year

NBC News - December 2

U.S. health spending always grows but it grew at an especially fast rate last year as more people got health insurance for the first time and as pricey new hepatitis drugs hit the market.

U.S. insurer lobby group seeks delay in 2018 Obamacare deadline

Reuters - December 6

The largest lobbying group for health insurers has asked U.S. lawmakers weighing the fate of Obamacare to push back the due date for 2018 individual insurance submissions to regulators in hopes of obtaining greater clarity on the program's future later on.

Obamacare is not the only insurance plan in trouble

EBNews - December 7

I recently had a short conversation that was somewhat surprising, and maybe very telling. I was having a prescription filled and I spoke briefly with the woman handling my order.

Pfizer blood cancer drug tops standard therapy for untreated patients

Reuters - December 5

Pfizer Inc said on Monday its cancer drug, Bosulif, was found superior to Novartis AG's Gleevec in a late-stage study on untreated patients with a form of blood and bone marrow cancer characterized by abnormal white blood cells production.

F.D.A. Agrees to New Trials for Ecstasy as Relief for PTSD Patients

New York Times - November 29

After three tours in Iraq and Afghanistan, C. J. Hardin wound up hiding from the world in a backwoods cabin in North Carolina. Divorced, alcoholic and at times suicidal, he had tried almost all the accepted treatments for post-traumatic stress disorder: psychotherapy, group therapy and nearly a dozen different medications.

Can't buy love? Drug price hikes put sex beyond reach

Associated Press - December 5
